

Principles of a 21st Century Education

Saturday, May 8th ○ 1:00pm to 3:00pm

Two leading minds in education reform offer workshop for educators, parents, and students.

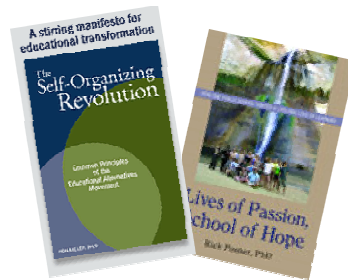

Ron Miller

"For any one who cares about the future of education, Miller is essential reading. With fluid prose and a personal style, he lays out the imperative to revolutionize our industrial-age educational system to align with the needs of our children and the transformational nature of our times. What makes this book so hopeful is that Miller shows we don't have to start from scratch to invent an educational system appropriate to the 21st century."

Rick Posner

"Such schools must become the pilots for the future-- schools to argue about and learn from. A refreshingly clear account of what schools can mean to young people's real life futures."

-- Deborah Meier, author of The Power of Their Ideas on the Jefferson County Open School

Dr. Posner is an expert in self-directed learning and the modern rites-of-passage curriculum.
